

LEARNING AND DEVELOPMENT

TurningPoints is an attempt to stop the double binds that make us blind to fundamental threats and for easy solutions: The world needs solutions that make the people secure. It will require workplaces. Instead, we use the money on weapons that will keep the social turmoil down. Weapons are far more expensive than the solutions that would solve the causes of the social turmoil.

Only by changing the context, namely by reaching out and peacefully taking away the stick from the power-holders, the situation changes. Doing so, is learning. In order to reach a higher level of learning, you must exceed basic trusted ideas. (Bateson)

TurningPoints' purpose is to help develop the world away from poverty and violence by establishing jobs and developing the police.

TurningPoints is the coordinating unit of the two subdivisions that make up their own branch under TurningPoints: Pass It On (making companies) and Politeia (Teaching: leadership and conflict resolution).

Pass It On creates companies that create companies. Democratic, self-reliant, sustainable companies, with profit sharing.

Politeia teaches the police in conflict theory, conflict resolution, and how to build a police that the people trust and which the people dare to turn to when necessary.

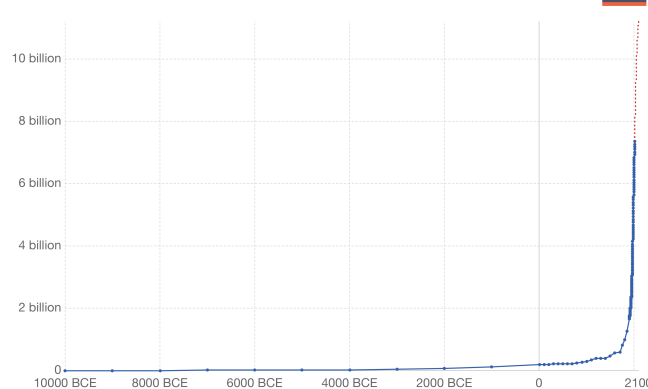

Violence is one of the main reasons why the poor are poor in the first place and one of the main reasons why they stay poor. Without security for the poor, no development will take place.

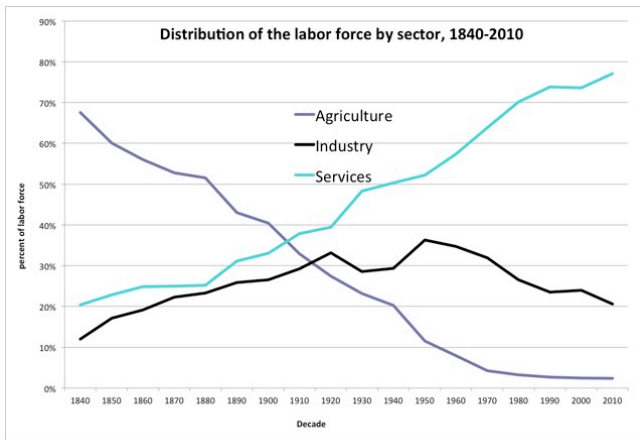

GLOBAL CHALLENGES

Population growth will reach 11 billion in the 2100. Schools, companies and jobs are not created at the same rate. This will cause migration, social unrest and violence. The creation of companies, jobs and a democratically founded police is an effective response.

A NEW DEVELOPMENT IDEA

TurningPoints coordinates interventions into two closely related barriers to development: poverty and violence.

This will be done by creating a new type of business that distributes work and finance, and by teaching the police about recruitment, profession, leadership and conflict resolution.

TurningPoints is the coordinating unit of two sub-divisions that make up their own branch under TurningPoints: Pass It On (making companies) and Politeia (Teaching: leadership & conflict resolution.)

PASS IT ON

Pass It On serves the article §23 of the UN Human Rights Declaration, that every person is entitled to a job. And a job they can live off.

Pass It On is a general concept of how to establish a new type of business where the work performed belongs to the producers. In a company that owns itself.

Pass It On is a concept in which the company is called 'to have 3 children' - to create a cascade effect of new companies. They are free, and are not to produce the same products, but they too have to have child-companies sharing work and economy.

VIOLENCE

Violence and turmoil arise when the capacity and understanding of the problems are insufficient. It is necessary both to work with the direct violence with the police and it is necessary to work with the structural violence in the form of Pass It On

POLITEIA

Politeia focuses its activities on human security in connection with the creation of Pass It On companies.

Many Pass It On companies will be established in areas where there is no real security in civil society. And that means that goods, revenues and permissions for business may be subjected to robbery, threats, lack of protection, bribery in connection with permission to operate in production, business or similar.

Politeia teaches the police in recruitment, professionalization, conflict understanding, conflict resolution, management and organization.

Politeia is working with and reducing the violence and turmoil that prevents economic growth and maintain a population in poverty.
